the Senate must vote affirmatively thereon, and that the Senate is evidently not in a blatant utterances of Nordhoff. hurry to do. In spite of the vigorous effort of determined and patriotic men the financial condition, while slowly improving, is sets the seal of its approval upon the bill which it is now considering. Further debate is unnecessary and inexcusable. Every wasted hour means delay in the recuperative process, and every day of senatorial language and miscalled courtesy means prolonged stagnation and the bankruptcy of many men. Should there be six months of debate it will change not even a single vote, and this fact is patent to every Senator. Why, then, delay? Why not at once come to a vote? One of the legitimate results of this polite procrastination is found in the document framed by righteouslyangered agriculturists who have appealed to Governor Tillman to call an extra sesgion of the South Carolina legislature to pass a stay law on all debts falling due on without bankrupting ourselves and starving our wives and children." The country is endeavoring, and with some show of success, to climb out of the financial hole in which for some time past it has been compelled to wallow; it is hampered by senatorial inactivity; it will be aided if every Senator who has or thinks he has views on the subject of money will waive the utterance of those views until after a vote has been taken. The Congressional Record was never less appreciated than at the

In accordance with the law duly made and provided, this is the day on which the lifesaving season opens, and according to the provisions of the same law the season will ontinue until the first day of April next. From the first day of April until the first day of September Congress seems to suppose that the oceans will be calm as the proverbial mill-pond, and that human life among those who "go down to the sea in ships" will not be in danger. The absurdity of this conclusion has never been more thoroughly or eadly demonstrated than during the past two or three weeks. Storm after storm has beaten on our shores and from the rocky barriers of Maine to the vast stretches of southern sand wreckage and the bodies of men and women who might have been saved give heart-rending testimony to the short-sightedness of our legislators and the insufficiency of the appropriation devoted to a good cause. From now until the first of April all the life-saving stations will be fully manned, but it is questionable whether throughout even the bitterness of winter's gales there will be more necessity for a full complement of crews than has existed during this just departed month of August. ern Atlantic coast is due largely to the erolam of volunteers who, as a rule, were wholly unaccustomed to boating under such conditions, but the government will hardly attempt to justify its penuriousness by arguing that the summer boarders at sea-side hotels can attend to all the wrecks that take place between the first of pril and the first of September. There is reason why the life-saving stations should not be in working trim all the year round, for there is no season when we are exempt from marine disaster. And while ongress is attending to this important matter it can add greatly to its reputation and to the reputation of the country by agreeing to pay the keepers and surfmen reasonably good salaries and then by appropriating enough money to make the promise good.

In the game of see-saw now going on at the Capitol the anti-silver men in the Senate and the friends of silver in the House each managed yesterday to score a victory. Of these victories, however, the greater is that which was won by Senator Voorhees, who, as chairman of the committee on finance, now holds the situation in his grasp. By a vote of 35 to 31 Senator Peffer's resolution of inquiry as to national banks was referred to the committee on nance; the Voorhees bill providing for the ncrease of national bank circulation was, its author's action, removed from among unfinished business on the calendar, to say: and by a clever little piece of maneuvering the bill to repeal the silver purchase provision of the act of 1890 becomes a part of the regular order of business. It is therefore within the power of Chairman Voorhees and he can call it up for a vote at any time. He has said that this action will

That there should have been active conspiracy to re-enthrone the colored lady who once played the star part in a comic opera government of the Hawaiian, Islands, is not at all surprising. Surroun fed as she was and supported as she is by smugglers, lottery sharps and by other varieties of dis-reputable mankind, who have grown fat reputable mankind, who have grown fat through the profitable blindness of socalled royalty, it is rather astonishing that there has not ere this been a concerted and determined effort to upset what is unabtedly the best government Hawaii has ver known. Not that these persons could themselves have hoped to succeed, for that has always seemed to be impossible, but many of them had, after an authoritative fashion, been led to believe that the power of the United States, if ever exercised, would move to the support of mon-archy and the sharpers behind it. This unreasonable conclusion was reached from bases that had the appearance of perfect soundness. The principal representative of the United States—who for the protection of American interests har i called to his aid force of United States seamen and marines, and who bell wed that the death, of regal supremacy meant the birth of civilization-was unce remoniously and unjustly supplanted by Minister Paramount Blount, who was he raided by Correspondent Charles North of the New York Herald as the frie nd of the distressed and evicted remnants of a rotten court.
